FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Ro2 Art presents The Perfect Dose, the a special one-night-only farewell exhibition and sale of paintings by Dallas artist, Clint Mordecai, before he relocates to Boston on Friday, July 8 at our Downtown space, located at 110 N. Akard Street, between Main and Elm, on the ground floor of the historic Kirby Building.

Artist Statement:

This collection is about independence and new beginnings. With me moving to New England in the next few weeks, I want to do something that signifies the end to one chapter of my life and the exciting beginning of a new one. Dallas has been amazing, and very welcoming to my not so “cookie cutter” style of art. So before I leave, I want to give everyone that has supported me an extraordinary show.

The look and feel of The Perfect Dose is a blend of two previous collections, Solace and Dollhouse... with a twist. This time I pushed myself to do more intricate designs with vibrant colors, and a “perfect dose” of dark humor. In the process I think I have come up with something really special.

-Clint Mordecai, June 2011

About Clint Mordecai:

Clint Mordecai was born and raised in Collinsville, TX, a small North Texas town outside of Sherman. He later moved to Dallas, where he currently resides. He studied at the Art Institute of Dallas where he honed his artistic and creative skills in fashion illustration and later moved into the contemporary and pop art genre. Influenced by the likes of Roy Lichtenstein, Roberto Varga, and Andy Warhol, Clint delivers his unique style and character to each of his paintings. He uses a variety of mediums to bring his creations to life, including acrylic, ink, and oils on canvas, as well as other mixed media. Over the past five years, Clint has created work for four successful solo exhibits in Dallas at the ilume Gallerie, Ivy Lounge Gallerie, Mercantile Place, and The Element.
